Addressing the demand for a niche skillset

UK law firms that choose to keep their cyber clients' data mining and extraction work in-house are challenged to find qualified CIR reviewers with the requisite skills. With the turnaround times associated with breach notification, it becomes even more difficult to staff projects.

To address this skills deficit and demand, Integreon offers law firms a cost-effective alternative to in-house reviewers and time-consuming recruiting by providing trained resources certified in CIR review and extraction.

First of its kind CIR-training curriculum built on Integreon's deep expertise

Integreon is a pioneer in cyber incident response having reviewed over a billion documents, consolidated and notified millions of entities, and honed a cyber-specific process.

Leveraging our expertise, we have designed a CIR-specific training program for university graduates, paralegals, and lawyers to the gain the requisite skills to successfully support CIR review projects of any size and complexity. This unique certification and staffing model enables law firms to quickly ramp up in-house teams under their management, meeting their client's demand for speed and quality.

Comprehensive CIR training and certification

Integreon takes on the cost and time associated with recruiting and training. Applicants that make it through the vetting process are put through a rigorous 5-day virtual training program. Though online, we also provide live sessions with an experienced CIR trainer creating an open forum to ask questions. Those that successfully complete the training receive a CIR certification and are ready to join law firm CIR review teams.

Certified reviewers will be trained in the jurisdiction laws associated with CIR and standard data types including:

- GDPR
- HIPAA
- PIPEDA
- PII/PHI
- NDB

Integreon provides training on industry leading technology platforms such as Relativity. Trainees will also gain working knowledge of basic Excel functionality, as well as some of the soft skills needed for CIR projects.

While the aim is to train the individuals on CIR concepts, we will also make sure they are ready to work in large teams in professional environments.

Always searching so you don't have to

The process of recruiting and training is ongoing. We are constantly adding to our pool of qualified reviewers, so we are ready to meet your CIR staffing needs and timing.
