Due Diligence Solutions

Critical corporate risk assessment with generative AI

Powering the M&A workflow

Legal due diligence in corporate transactions traditionally required a small army of lawyers to read through thousands of documents, looking for legal, regulatory and operational risks and gaps that might be relevant to a transaction. Digitization and machine learning tools transformed how legal teams approached the challenge, and now generative AI (GenAI) has brought a new dimension to the process.

Using a natural language interface, ContractPodAi's Leah Legal Copilot reviews document estates at speed and offers actionable recommendations, proactively identifying risks, saving time and conserving legal resources. With expertise in the use of Leah and the optimization of legal processes, and partnering with the client and your subject matter experts, Integreon can deliver any due diligence project with unbeatable efficiency and cost-effectiveness.

Superhuman resourcing

Technology cannot handle legal due diligence alone. Integreon understands how to design the due diligence process for maximum efficiency, and how to deploy Leah's modules so that search results and risk analysis are accurate, accessible and immediately actionable. We work with the client to build specific use cases from the Leah out-of-the-box functionalities:

- We manage the deployment of the tool and its various modules
- Our support teams have the experience to design and implement efficient processes that can comfortably handle massive data volumes
- Strict quality assurance and control systems are applied at every stage of delivery
- The solution is designed for easy integration with different client data processing systems
