As the only end-to-end cyber incident response (CIR) solution downstream of forensics, Integreon understands the role of speed and accuracy during first pass CIR reviews. Historically, this has been a highly manual process that could result in errors, inaccuracies, and bottlenecks. Integreon knew we could do more and do it better for our clients.

Leveraging deep CIR expertise honed over five years working across industries, jurisdictions, and document types, Integreon's center for innovation, i-Lab team developed CyberHawk-AI, the first CIR ML application.

Fast, accurate, and always learning

Built uniquely for CIR review, CyberHawk-AI provides unprecedented speed, quality, accuracy, and price transparency – independent of document type.

Other benefits and highlights include:

- Automated first pass review significantly reduces turnaround times
- Predictable pricing, independent of document types
- High quality and accuracy even for the largest timebound manual reviews
- Trained on 30 common data points
- Integrates multiple proprietary CIR-specific tools developed and tested over many years
- Establishes entity-level association with data points
- Automated quality control triggers based on business rules
- All outputs validated by cyber quality experts from Integreon's dedicated CIR team
- ML-platform learns as it goes based on responses from Integreon's cyber quality experts

The CyberHawk-AI Edge

Origin

Designed specifically for CIR capturing years of nuanced learning across document types and complexities

Speed

Significant time reduc for 1st pass review applicable across 99% of documents

Applicability

- 34 document types including
PDF, xml, and excels
- Establishes entity-level association with data points

Accuracy

- Human in the loop" with 0 risk of error as all output runs through a human layer
- ML provides element-level confidence scores, triggering manual review when needed
